

When we were setting out on the journey to build our dream home we had very specific ideas about the design and style of home we wanted to build. We spoke with a number of people, both architects and builders, in an attempt to find the right fit, but we struggled to find anyone who could see the vision that we had for our home. Then we came across an article about a similar style home that had been built by Devrite Constructions and we arranged to meet with Ron and Jay Mangano who were immediately able to understand exactly what we wanted, and together with their designer, Dean Bell, we were finally able to come up with a fabulous, personalised design for a home that would not only make the most of our narrow, sloping block and river views, but would be future-proofed for us as we head into our retirement years.

From the outset Ron and Jay showed a genuine desire to build our home, and convinced us that they would be every bit as personally invested in achieving an excellent outcome as we were.

Ron and Jay were extremely patient and provided invaluable advice and support during the protracted negotiations for Council approval. Once construction commenced, they were on site and available constantly, involving us in decision-making every step of the way.

Throughout the entire process Ron and Jay both gave support and advice over and above the call of duty, providing extra expert advice on all matters, even those unrelated to the build. Ron even assisted us with supervising various works that were not a part of the building contract.

Ron has very high expectations from all his tradesmen, who without exception provide an outstanding quality of finish. We believe that it is Ron's personal supervision of all work being carried out, together with his unbending attention to detail, that achieves and maintains these high standards.

We would like to extend our sincere thanks to Ron and Jay and to all the team at Devrite for making what can often be a stressful experience one that was both memorable and enjoyable. We can honestly say that if we had not built with Devrite Homes we would not be living in the high quality and beautifully finished home that we are.

Lindsay and Jenny McBride

18/10/2015